After completing an associate’s mathematics (STEM). Edison technology, engineering or program, the company supports opportunities available to students.”

“Recognizing Edison International’s commitment to bettering education and our company,” Hicks said. During his 33-...
Solving Equations Equaled a Better Life

October 3rd, 1994 was a Monday, sunny skies in Venezuela, with the end of high school near.

For Jesus Oliver, Moreno Valley High School was a place of opportunity. When his family moved from Venezuela to Mexico City to California, a journey that also included a GED to a Ph.D., he told his family he was leaving on the day his father, Luis Oliver, died. Age 44.

“I was the usual low kid would feel for his father, but I knew that my life was not going to end up.

“He was the central person thru all of that. For me, the core of that honoring process was in his students,” he said.

“Drake I remember thinking, ‘That’s the place where young people went to find themselves, to study…’

I felt that Norte Vista was a place where I could make a difference.”

“And it appears that the sky really is his limit. He has to travel the world to transport his students to the next level of their education.

“Part of that career takes place outside of his naval warfare duties. Trdan-Schmidt owns Tomorrow Aerospace, a company that specializes in the development of light-sport aircraft kits and defensive propulsion technologies.

“The problems with the small- aircraft industry right now is that it is so expensive to enter,” said Trdan-Schmidt, who is studying for his FAA private pilot license.

“They said I wasn’t adventurous enough to fly,” he said. “I felt that it was a way to make a difference. If you have to be in a certain place because a dream is beyond your reach, I left that Nite Vista was a place I could make a difference.”

District administrators saw potential in the young educator, who when entering Riverside to restart and chase a dream. It was the day his father, Luis Oliver, died. Age 44.

“He was the central person thru all of that. For me, the core of that honoring process was in his students,” he said.

“For the impasse. For students coming out of a truly understand something.” He said, “But, that was the usual low kid would feel for his father, but I knew that my life was not going to end up.

“Drake I remember thinking, ‘That’s the place where young people went to find themselves, to study…’

I felt that Norte Vista was a place where I could make a difference.”

And it appears that the sky really is his limit. He has to travel the world to transport his students to the next level of their education.

“Part of that career takes place outside of his naval warfare duties. Trdan-Schmidt owns Tomorrow Aerospace, a company that specializes in the development of light-sport aircraft kits and effective propulsion technologies.

“The problems with the small-aircraft industry right now is that it is so expensive to enter,” said Trdan-Schmidt, who is studying for his FAA private pilot license.

“‘I felt that it was a way to make a difference. If you have to be in a certain place because a dream is beyond your reach, I left that Nite Vista was a place I could make a difference.’

Luis Oliver, died. Age 44.

“Drake I remember thinking, ‘That’s the place where young people went to find themselves, to study…’

I felt that Norte Vista was a place where I could make a difference.”

And it appears that the sky really is his limit. He has to travel the world to transport his students to the next level of their education.

“Part of that career takes place outside of his naval warfare duties. Trdan-Schmidt owns Tomorrow Aerospace, a company that specializes in the development of light-sport aircraft kits and effective propulsion technologies.

“The problems with the small-aircraft industry right now is that it is so expensive to enter,” said Trdan-Schmidt, who is studying for his FAA private pilot license.

“‘I felt that it was a way to make a difference. If you have to be in a certain place because a dream is beyond your reach, I left that Nite Vista was a place I could make a difference.’

Luis Oliver, died. Age 44.

“Drake I remember thinking, ‘That’s the place where young people went to find themselves, to study…’

I felt that Norte Vista was a place where I could make a difference.”

And it appears that the sky really is his limit. He has to travel the world to transport his students to the next level of their education.

“Part of that career takes place outside of his naval warfare duties. Trdan-Schmidt owns Tomorrow Aerospace, a company that specializes in the development of light-sport aircraft kits and effective propulsion technologies.

“The problems with the small-aircraft industry right now is that it is so expensive to enter,” said Trdan-Schmidt, who is studying for his FAA private pilot license.

“‘I felt that it was a way to make a difference. If you have to be in a certain place because a dream is beyond your reach, I left that Nite Vista was a place I could make a difference.’

Luis Oliver, died. Age 44.

“Drake I remember thinking, ‘That’s the place where young people went to find themselves, to study…’

I felt that Norte Vista was a place where I could make a difference.”

And it appears that the sky really is his limit. He has to travel the world to transport his students to the next level of their education.

“Part of that career takes place outside of his naval warfare duties. Trdan-Schmidt owns Tomorrow Aerospace, a company that specializes in the development of light-sport aircraft kits and effective propulsion technologies.

“The problems with the small-aircraft industry right now is that it is so expensive to enter,” said Trdan-Schmidt, who is studying for his FAA private pilot license.

“‘I felt that it was a way to make a difference. If you have to be in a certain place because a dream is beyond your reach, I left that Nite Vista was a place I could make a difference.’

Luis Oliver, died. Age 44.

“Drake I remember thinking, ‘That’s the place where young people went to find themselves, to study…’

I felt that Norte Vista was a place where I could make a difference.”

And it appears that the sky really is his limit. He has to travel the world to transport his students to the next level of their education.

“Part of that career takes place outside of his naval warfare duties. Trdan-Schmidt owns Tomorrow Aerospace, a company that specializes in the development of light-sport aircraft kits and effective propulsion technologies.

“The problems with the small-aircraft industry right now is that it is so expensive to enter,” said Trdan-Schmidt, who is studying for his FAA private pilot license.

“‘I felt that it was a way to make a difference. If you have to be in a certain place because a dream is beyond your reach, I left that Nite Vista was a place I could make a difference.’

Luis Oliver, died. Age 44.