• To apply for RCCD Scholarships, you are required to provide at least one scholarship recommendation. Be sure to carefully read the criteria for specific scholarships as they may require that your recommendation letter be completed by instructors within your major. You may also want to ask a second or third person for a recommendation as a back-up or an additional recommendation.

• You will need to ask the person from whom you are requesting a recommendation for their email address. You will enter their email in the place indicated on the scholarship application. The recommendation provider will then receive an email from the scholarship application system. They will log in and complete a recommendation questionnaire on your behalf. You will not be able to view the recommendation; however you will be able to see that it has been submitted to your application. Only the scholarship screening committee will be able to view the recommendations.

• It is your responsibility that the recommendations are submitted on or before the deadline. If the recommendation is listed as “Requested” on the scholarship application site, that means it has not been properly submitted. You also have the option in the scholarship system to send a reminder email to the person from whom you requested a recommendation.

• Who should you ask for a scholarship recommendation?
The scholarship recommendation should be completed by individuals who can attest to your current academic strength and potential for success. The best sources are:
  o Instructors who teach classes within your major and for which you have done excellent work.
  o Employers if you are currently working in your chosen field.
  o Other possible sources are other instructors (outside your major), academic advisors, counselors, employers (even if outside your chosen field), clergy or other known members of the community.
  o Be sure to ask for recommendations from sources that you know will write favorable things about you. A parent, relative, or other student are poor sources for scholarship evaluations and will not be considered as valid references.

• Please ask for recommendations politely and early enough to allow them plenty of time for the recommendation to be completed and submitted before the deadline. Sometimes, the person you ask for a recommendation may request more information about you in order to get to know you better and write a more personal recommendation. In this case, you may want to give them a copy of your personal essay and/or an activities/achievement resume as a source of additional personal information.

• Don't be afraid to approach any of your Instructors or Counselors about providing a scholarship recommendation. They are usually familiar with providing recommendations for scholarship applications. Let them know that you have requested a recommendation from them and to expect an email from the scholarship application system. Remember to give them plenty of time and not wait until the last minute. You may need to follow-up and remind them about two or three weeks before the scholarship deadline if it has not been submitted.
